Agricultural Society

At the annual meeting of the above society held in December, the following officers were appointed:

Hon. Pres.—Duncan Marshall, M.L.A., Minister of Agriculture.

Hon. Vice-President—Mrs. McKinney, M.L.A., Norman G. Holmes, Mayor of Clarensholm.

President—R. S. Law.

1st Vice-Pres.—O. J. Berg.

2nd Vice-Pres.—F. W. Elliott.

Directors—J. McKinney, P. E. Hood, J. O. White, C. F. A. Leeds, Tattinger, J. J. Stephen, Moffatt, C. B. Gray, Dr. Shiner, J. J. Salmon, F. R. Stipp, D. B. Vandyke, T. Darren, H. S. Wyatt, G. R. Maxwell.

Delegate to Convention of Fairs—F. W. Elliott.

Secretary-Treasurer—J. R. Watt.

The financial statement presented by the Secretary-Treasurer was considered very satisfactory as it appeared that all past debt for lumber, bank loans, etc., were cleared so that the Society has a clean sheet to date.

The matter of there being still some $1300.00 of mortgages against the Park Association ground was discussed and it was hoped that steps could be taken to clear this off as it only meant money being taken out of the exhibition receipts to pay interest which might go into buildings.

Public School Notes

Two new teachers have been engaged, Miss A. L. Ramsey of Red Deer and Miss Nellie Thompson of Bentley. Both of these young ladies have had four years experience and are well qualified for the work they have undertaken.

Grade 2 will be in charge of Miss Thompson, Grade 3, 4 and 5 will be divided between Miss Simpson and Miss Ramsey. Grade 6 will be taken by Miss Hartwick. The teacher occupying an extra room is required.

To meet this need the school board rented the Parish Hall which will be used for the primary class. Parents will please note that all pupils in Miss Porter's classes should go to the Parish Hall.

School opens for the New Year on Monday January 16.

The following letter has been received which will be of considerable interest:

MONTRAL, DEC. 28, 1917.
LT. OWEN WILLIAMS,
CLARENSHOLM, ALTA.

DEAR SIR:—We acknowledge your letter of Dec. 24th, together with the one you have written to us per credit slips aforesaid. We, however, call your attention to the enclosed target from Geo. Barr, which you will note scores only 49. Barr will, therefore, have to send in one more target scoring 50 or better.

With reference to your question concerning our other clubs in Alberta. We may say that your club is doing very well, in fact at the present time it is more active than any other club. We must, however, tell you that it is practically the oldest club in Alberta and, therefore, has had every opportunity to win the trophy.

The club in which we are receiving from Alberta indicate that it is going to be one of our most active sections. We are telling you this so that your boys will not slacken up because they may be at the present time ahead of the rest.

However, do congratulate you in the work your boys which is really very good.

Yours very truly,
DOMINION MAHKSIMAN,
Per Edmund Doreman.

Lawrence Lydon has won his gold button being the first Cadet in Alberta to do so. This involved shooting ten targets of 65 or over out of 70. His average on the whole was 66.5.

A New Year Message

Yes, I would like to give you a message for the farmers of Alberta.

We want to make the United Farmers of Alberta the best organization in Canada. We can do that in one way only—by working together harmoniously for the best interest of all.

This involves an intelligent understanding of what is going on about us, and what we are trying to accomplish.

It also involves doing those things which come first.

Our Country is at war, and the Alberta farmers are an integral part of the war effort, hence they are in the war.

There are three well defined branches in the service of the Allied cause, viz: the military forces, the transportation forces and the producing forces. The military and transportation forces are serving under the greatest hardship and constant dangers. The producing forces are giving a service just as vital to the success of the cause, but this service is given in safety.

We have not been brought to realize the vital need of increased production until the last few months, but now the need is so plain that everyone desiring to do his duty may see it clearly.

The New Year, 1918, calls to every man in Alberta to produce every bushel of grain and every pound of wheat he possibly can. Not only must you produce all you can, but you must put emphasis on those things most vital, viz: wheat and hogs. Remember that this is not a matter of profit only, but one of service also. Neither is it a matter of service alone for both wheat and hogs will be profitable where conditions are adapted to their production.

If the members of the U. F. A. will bring the best possible service in the matter of production in 1918 will be worthy of the highest praise. If they do not, it will be less than their plain simple duty.

Sad Accident on Saturday 29th

While riding after the cattle on Saturday evening, Ernest Mackintosh, age 12 years, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mackintosh was in some manner thrown from the saddle and dragged by one foot for some distance sustaining injuries which proved fatal. He died yesterday about 12 p.m. Mr. Mackintosh was in the vicinity of the accident and was called home by phone.

The funeral took place on New Year's day from E.C. Church, Clarensholm and was attended by practically the whole country and town showing the esteem in which the young lad was held.

The entire district goes out to the bereaved family.

Quebec Plans a Boycott

A business boycott against Ontario by people in Quebec has begun to take effect. In Canada, a Liberal newspaper published here, La Canada, says it knows of a number of French Canadian houses in Montreal who will have no further commercial dealings with Ontario concerns, people who are regarded as the enemy of their race.

Quebec further contends that the merchants of a whole city in this province have unanimously decided to boycott Ontario establishments and to deal with only Quebec or American firms.

If Quebec is serious in its boycott plans, it will find that Western Canada is prepared to stand by Ontario and can also carry out a boycott of Quebec.

The Halifax death list now totals 162.

The wind blew coldly in her face as she opened the door of the dancing room. She lit a candle and went quickly about the room. She knew what she wanted. Dolly's garments flung down in the hurry of departure had been gathered up and neatly packed. A fine, generous, noble creature. She had all the responsibility of a woman now. Lady South had always known it. It were well she had been fitted up for her rival. She had always known it. It were well she had the strength of her mother's presence in her memory.

She entered the room, damp, unlighted, straightening her hair and pulling her skirt. She knew the room had closed pulses. She blew out the candle and went to her ears and fled past her like a wind.

She stood by Cooper, veiled and cloaked, a small handful in her hand. "Ah," he said, "you were always quick to see what was to be done. Let us go. There is food in the cart and a bed where you can lay down and sleep. The road is rough but it is slow, but sure. We shall be in Belgrave when the sun rises. After that we will take the train."

"And the east?"

"The east will bring back some how. Perhaps the horse may do it for me. He has more intelligence than the man. Anyhow it is not our business. Come!"

"You will extinguish the lights." "I will. I have a mind to burn the place down. It is my own to do what I will with. They will not be able to trace me after I have been burnt in it. I shall never come back."

"The cupboards over there are full. We are safely out. It will take some time to get rid of them. Come. I indeed should not be surprised if one came near till it till it was a heap of ashes. Come."

Again she seemed to listen. There was a movement outside. She looked out through the window. Her gendarmerie appeared in the doorway another and another.

"She is here, I tell ye." Someone was saying something she could not understand. Her head receded.

"She is here, I tell ye." So after all he had kissed her. His hands slipped over her through the veil impatiently. A shout was a shout. A couple of sharp reports rang out. The gun had been loaded what was it?—and lay huddled about her feet. She was down on her knees again. She was crying. She had been hit. There was something warm and wet all over her hands.

They all left her. There was a crackling sound and a smell of fire. She lay on the floor, calling for water. A flame ran up the wall, disappeared and broke out again. The house was burning. The farm house and stabling would burn like tinder. There was no water. The wind was high outside. The wind was high outside.

She thought in a wandering way of him. She thought he had been going along in the hooded coat with his hands in his pockets. She thought of all human help to the young venture of theirs, that new beginning for which she had had heart enough to live for. She thought of him turned to stone long ago. And now he was lying dead at her feet, dead by his own hand. He had died for his soul; no more time for beginning anew, for repentence, in this world. Oh, God! she thought, clutching her heart. "Remember that one woman loved me, wished as he was to whisper to me."

A whisper ran through them that the woman was dead. They had given her past all human help, to the car outside, where the driver lounged by the side of the road. She had been a passenger living or dead. She got in after the dead man had been hit. She had been hit. She had been hit by his head with his cold hands clasped to her breast that could not warm her. She was carried down to the village.

CHAPTER XXV.

"Port After Stormy Seas"

The Squire's marriage day was more than a year old. The young wife was on the tree and young whale with breaking ripples bloom when an heir was born to Silverstone Strangways because he was disappointed.

He did not play at all for him self, being a person of simple tastes. He did not at all intend to spend his life in the service of his country. He did not much in love with the London life which he had inherited. He was not a good man, neither. Neither Lady South nor Margaret had returned to Margate by her father's will, a will made some years back. She had been married to a man who had not returned to visit her inheritance, to banish his ghosts. After the strain of nursing her mother she had been very ill. Mr. Langton reported to Hilary that the girl suffered from a sickness which she had never had before. When it passed, all would be well.

"You don't know, my dear fellow," he said laying a kind hand on Hilary's shoulder, "what the girl suffered from. She has a candle and went quickly about the room. She knew what she wanted. Dolly's garments flung down in the hurry of departure had been gathered up and neatly packed. A fine, generous, noble creature. She had all the responsibility of a woman now. Lady South had always known it. It were well she had the strength of her mother's presence in her memory.

THE NEW YEAR

New Year's Day was one of the finest of the winter. The snow disappeared with the warm chinook winds and the clear blue sky and bright sunshine gave everything a summer appearance. We would like to feel that the first day was prophetic of the conditions that will prevail during the 364 days that are to follow. Everything in Alberta points with promise to another year of abounding prosperity. With abundance of moisture and higher prices for grain and live stock, Alberta should have another banner year and the farmers wealth should be greatly increased.

To those who are intelligent enough to understand the problems that face the world today, this prosperity in our own little province gives but small consolation. With the greater part of the world still struggling for its existence, we must be satisfied with one thing that is worth while in life, we cannot but look into the future with the utmost concern. If the world is to be saved from famine and if our troops are to be helped on to victory everyone must do his part. The farmer and rancher must produce to the limit of his ability and every man and woman should endeavor to engage in some work necessary to the winning of the war. With the conscription of men and the conscription of wealth, may also come the conscription of labor, and in view of the world's shortage of food, the governments would be amply justified in conscripting many of the men living in the towns and sending them to work on the farms.

It is pleasing to see the business like way that the United States is taking up the war burden. The latest news in ascertaining control of the railways is most encouraging. Public ownership of all the natural resources, and public utilities may soon follow. Canada has been slow in adapting war methods. It is hoped, now, that the Union Government will take a lesson from our neighbors, and make war as we meant it. Few would object to the government taking over the control of the C.P.R. It never has looked quite reasonable for the government to take over the railways that were on the verge of bankruptcy and leave the most prosperous to private interests. The marvelous natural resources of the Dominion, if developed by the government are sufficient to insure the future prosperity of Canada and pay off our war debt in a short time. We hope to see great changes in the Dominion during 1918. We believe that now is the time to lay the foundations of a more equitable and sane system of government and social order.

Presently, we all long for the end of the war, but only if Germany is beaten and the aims of the Allies realized. Until then the war continue.

Alberta Farm Loan Act

War conditions and unforeseen developments incident thereto have prompted the Provincial Government to make a statement of the situation with respect to the operation of the Farm Loan Act which was passed in April last and the matter of bringing it into operation has been considered for some time. It will be remembered that up to that time the U.S. had not entered the war and that the American market was then open to the world for borrowing purposes. As soon, however, as the United States joined the Allies, her markets were closed to outside borrowers and the source of supply from which our borrowings had been received was cut off. There remained only the Canadian market and it is hardly necessary to add that the large requirements of the Dominion Government for war purposes preclude our borrowing in that quarter at a rate low enough to make the plan a success.

The main principle of the Farm Loan Act involves the borrowing and the re-lending of money with a percentage charge and a minimum charge, and it will be seen that to insure effective results a continuous supply of money at a reasonable rate of interest is essential. The Government has, therefore, determined that in the interests of the farmers themselves, the present is not an opportune time to commence the loaning of money under the Farm Loan Act, and it has been decided to postpone its operation until conditions become more normal.

Pea for United Canada

A plea for a "United Canada," a condemnation of intolerance, and an appeal of patriotism in the features of a new New Year's resolution by W. H. Wood, president of the United Farmers of Alberta, and head of the Canadian Council of Agriculture. Mr. Wood was requested by The News-Telegram to say a word of greeting at this New Year season. His response breathes a great desire for harmony and tolerance in the following words:

"You ask me for a New Year's greeting. What kind of greeting can I give you this terrible New Year! Our nation is at war. We are fighting for a principle and we say that principle is righteousness and truth. We shall fight for our principles, while fighting the enemy without making common cause against this enemy within our gates? Yes, the greeting I will offer is one for a United Canada. Each dealing in all sincerity with his fellow countrymen, trying with all his might to lead, his brother up out of the error of intolerance. It is the divine way—the only way."

Somewhere in France, Nov. 27th
DEAR FOLKS:—Received your parcel tonight in A1 condition. I received a nice parcel from the Claresholm Red Cross Society, containing one towel, pair socks, candle, box oox cube, cake, package chewing gum, 2 bars soap, tobacco, some tobacco, which I gave to my chum. You were asking me what kind of a parcel is a fine assortment (except the tobacco). The condensed coffee comes in very handy when I come in about midnight from a long, cold ride, as well as is possible to get, take a tin as full of water, hold it over a candle till it boils and then add a teaspoonful of the coffee. The result is quite an agreeable mixture, commonly called coffee by the soldiers. This along with a piece of cake from home, or if you have no cake, a hard tack makes an agreeable lunch.

The reason I asked about the Staufelds is because some of this issue gives me a pain. The last pair I got would fit "Jiffy," but he would add an extension of about a foot, made of chevron cloth too, but it is not so tight as we are to give some heavy underwear everything will be jake.

Say, this is the best war I have ever been in. I am glad I enlisted when I did. The O.C. has built a fine little billet for me. I need a good place when I come in at 2 a.m., though I am still at the same old work, carrying dispatches which is getting worse every day as the roads get more slippery and muddy. My rank is Sapper not P'te.

Well, I will close wishing you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

From your son in France.

The United States Government has taken over the control of all the railroads in the country during the war. Competition will thus be eliminated and the whole railway system organized at such points as will be in the best interests.

If the plan works out as expected, there will be a mighty protest; should it be proposed later to allow the lines to revert to their former private individual management. Now would be an opportune time for our Union Government to take over our Canadian railroads.

A Winter Version

Mary had a little cold;

It started in her head;

And everywhere that Mary went

That cold was sure to spread.

It followed her to school one day;

"Twas not against the rule.

It made the children cough and sneeze.

To have that cold in school.

The teacher tried to drive it out.

She tried hard, but—kachoo!

It didn't do a bit of good.

The teacher caught it too!

German Intrigue

Washington, Dec. 31.—Insidious efforts of the Germans to involve the United States in the war have been disclosed in the peace negotiations being conducted with the Russian Bolsheviks. It has been disclosed that the Germans have done and in the opinion of some officers here, notice of the propaganda was first made to the British and French governments. If the British and French premiers are to meet in Paris soon, they will be advised to take care in the advisability of receiving and answering the proposals of the Bolsheviks to prevent the same from being accepted. It has been reported by a leading conservative British newspaper, they will act in accordance with the advice given and rigidly adhere to all the ententes allied with the defeated Central Powers to enter into peace proposals from the enemy, without consultation with each other. In diplomatic circles here it is said that the final decision from such a meeting would be probably made before the American state department.

Offer Any Inducements

Germany is believed to be prepared to offer almost any conceivable inducement to the United States to induce it to drive a wedge into the allies and cause its disruption and, hence succumb to German domination. Russia, trying to get that nation to influence her, late in the year, have for the last fortnight to the effect that another peace proposal will be launched by the central powers, either through the various and some neutral countries or directly, if necessary, in either case. If there is to be an other peace proposal through those channels, it is believed that the Germans feel that the time is ripe now for a strong and well-considered declaration of the United States to America that will effectively and completely paralyze and counter this attack.

In the meantime, the state department that President Wilson already has twice announced, has no way of influencing the Central Powers. Therefore, it is assumed that Lloyd George and Georges Clemenceau, after consulting the spokesmen of the other allies, decide that a reply shall be made to the German proposal that the reply must take some other form than an address by the American people.

Peace Reached Limit

General staff officers here are urged to attach great significance to the present attempt of the Central powers to force a peace into peace negotiations. To their mind, it is a clear indication that the Germans do not feel that they have accomplished all that they feel capable of doing in the present time. They can not afford to let up now, but they are suggested, but they can not extend their fields of occupation without an enormous loss of men and time at the risk of a terrible defeat. Therefore, the Teutonic diplomats seek to remain in the background and let the German armies have done and the Brest negotiations are the first steps toward that end.

Drive Across the River

Another reverse for the Teutonic allies following that effected by the French troops in their initial drive across the river Marne, has been brought about by that Italians in a sharp attack in the famous Zenson di Piave. Thus the entire right bank of the Piave, from the town of Bassano, except for the north, where the battle line runs westward from the battlefield, has been captured.

Suffered Severely

The fighting for the Zenson bridge-head has been in progress since last Friday, and the British and French are in the rear in order to gain the foe in order to gain the position, which always has been considered the most difficult. The losses were inflicted on the enemy by the artillery and rifle fire, and it was found to be difficult to re-cross the stream.

NOVEMBER PEACE TERMS

LONDON, Jan. 1.—The British government recognises that the Brest peace proposals constitute a grave and new fact of which official confirmation is necessary. The Daily Chronicle in reporting, as did the Manchester Guardian, that the British government had decided to send a special committee to the front to make a serious and reasonable reply to the Austrian peace terms when received officially. The article concluded that Great Britain, in view of the circumstances, will not be able to give a definite answer to the peace proposals. The reported statement of Mr. Clemenceau, it declares, is an intelligent anticipation which may or may not be realized.

CHEERFUL MESSAGE COMES FROM FRANCE

Paris, Jan. 1.—Premier Clemenceau has given the French government the full details of the peace terms proposed by the Central powers. He said: "We have no confidence? Because I know our people; because I know their chiefs, sight-seers and realists; because I know our enemies, and above all their hopes of peace in the allies; because I see the American action of the Russian Maximalists."

"A few more strenuous efforts. The road is straight. I sight the goal."

On Wednesday evening the orchestra at the Rox was still further improved by the addition of Mr. Larionoff, the bassoonist, who has been with us less to say, the patrons enjoyed the good music. Miss Lyons was at the piano.
